

Regarding incorrect unit for resource saving effect

This is a description of the energy consumption of our production method and existing production methods posted on our website and publication.

When it was described as kL/m², it was correctly L/m².

For the figures, incorrect units were stated from the time of publication on January 22, 2019 to March 12, 2020.

There is no change in the energy reduction ratio itself, only the unit listed is incorrect.

We deeply apologize for the incorrect numerical units listed for important indicators.
